OVERVIEW OF THE CREST SURVEY PROGRAM

(30 April 1998)

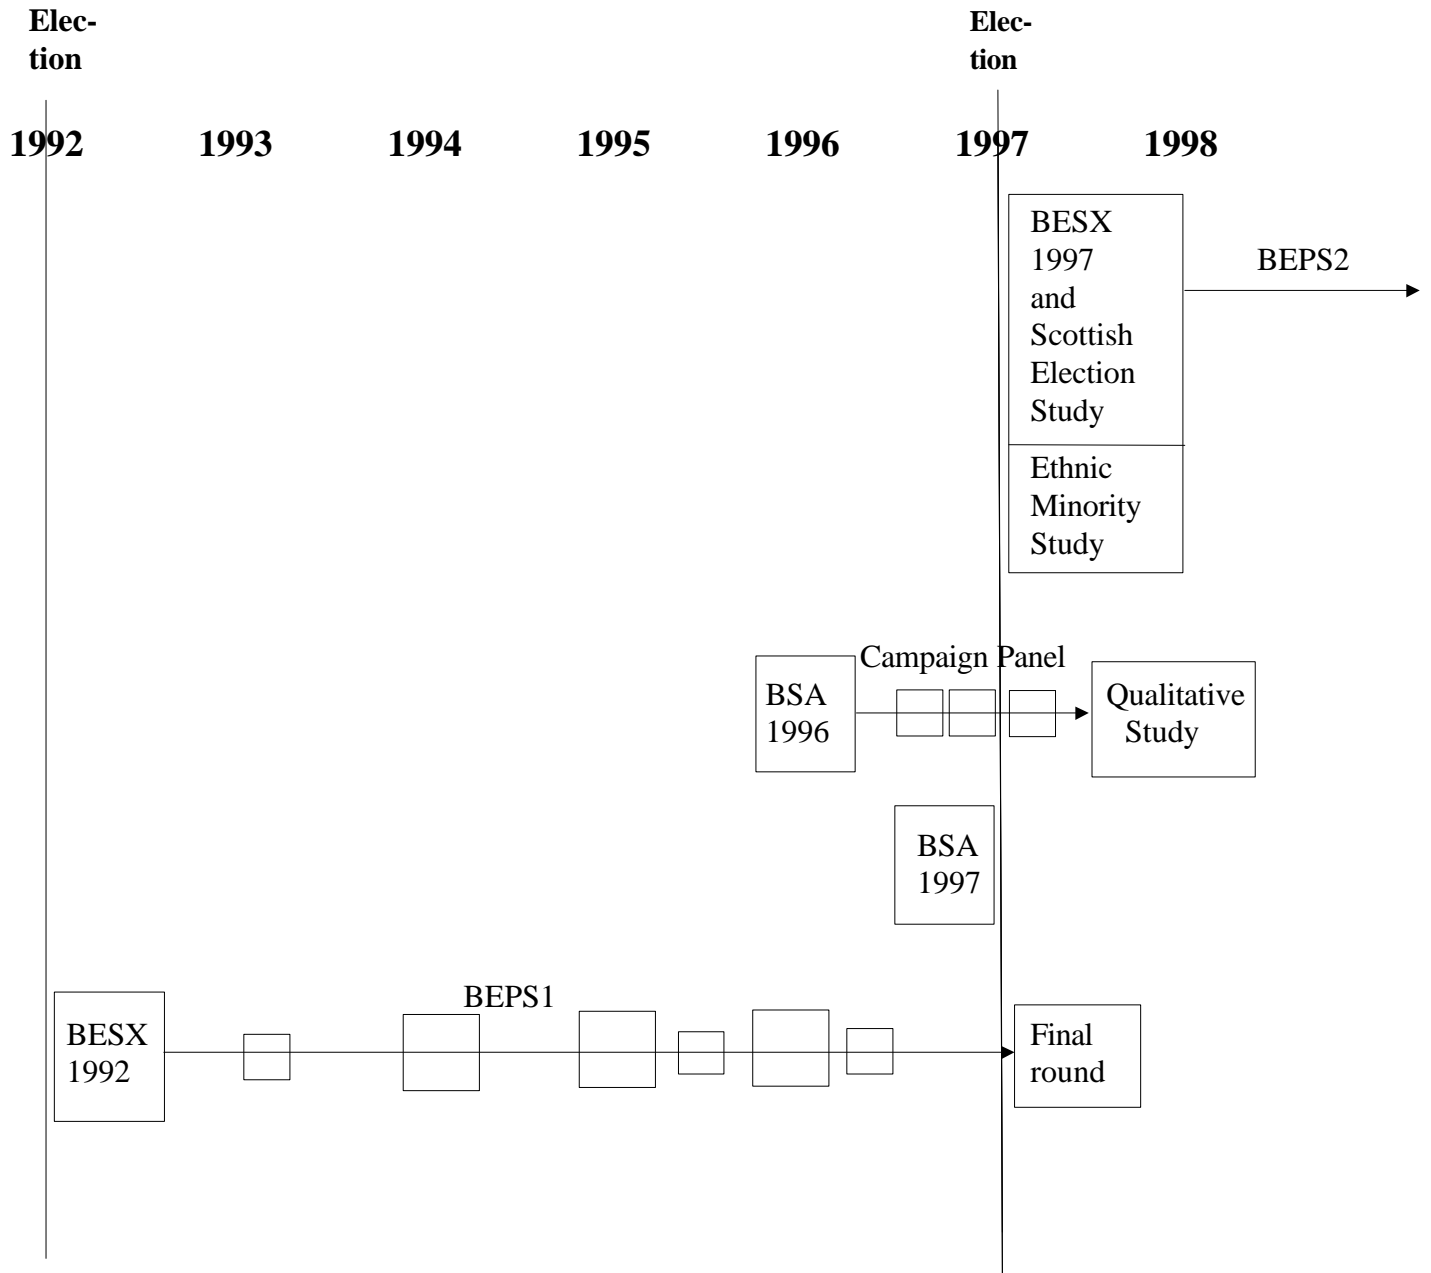

British General Election Study series

The British General Election Study (BGES) series constitutes the longest academic series of nationally representative probability sample surveys in the country. Its broad aim is to explore the changing determinants of electoral behaviour in contemporary Britain. The surveys have taken place immediately after every general election since 1964, giving a total of ten so far. There have also been two non-election year surveys (in 1963 and 1969), Scottish and Welsh booster studies at some elections, an ethnic minority booster sample in 1997, several campaign studies and a number of panel surveys.

Since the series was originated by David Butler and Donald Stokes, it has been under the direction of a number of academics. Since 1983 it has been directed by Anthony Heath, Roger Jowell and John Curtice and carried out jointly by SCPR and Nuffield College Oxford. The 1992 BES surveys were carried out as part of the activities of the ESRC-funded Joint Unit for the Study of Social Trends (JUSST). The 1997 studies were carried out by its successor, CREST, in collaboration with Pippa Norris of Harvard University, with funding from the ESRC, the Gatsby Charitable Foundation and the Commission for Racial Equality.

The 1997 British Election Study included a greater number of separate but inter-linked studies than ever before. The chart below summarises them. Then brief details of each of these studies follow.

BRITISH ELECTION STUDY 1997 PROGRAMME OF SURVEYS

a) British Election Cross-section Study

The traditional post-election cross-section survey in 1997 involved face-to-face computer-assisted personal interviews with a random British sample of around 3,000 adults (plus the extra Scottish and ethnic minority boosts, detailed below). The interview length was one hour, conducted face-to-face using computer-assisted interviewing, and all respondents were then asked to complete a self-completion supplement taking around 15 minutes. Eighty-five per cent did so. About 90 per cent of the fieldwork was completed within six weeks or so of the election, the shortest fieldwork period ever.

The following special features were incorporated into the 1997 cross-section survey:

- A Scottish Election Survey, in collaboration with David McCrone and Alice Brown at Edinburgh University and Paula Surridge at the University of Aberdeen (which involved both a boosted sample in Scotland of 600 extra interviews and an additional ten minutes of questionnaire time for Scottish respondents).
- An Ethnic Minority Election Study, in collaboration with Shamit Saggat at Queen Mary and Westfield College (which involved a boosted sample of ethnic minority respondents of around 600 extra interviews and an additional ten minutes of questionnaire time for ethnic minority respondents in England and Wales).
- The Comparative Study of Electoral Systems (CSES) - an extra module of questions asked in identical format on election studies around the world.
- A Registration and Turnout Study: for the first time in the BES series, the sample was selected from the Postcode Address File instead of from the Electoral Registers, thereby enabling the study to cover adults who were not registered to vote. Registration for each respondent has been established by checking the Electoral Registers. We have also used the marked Registers to validate respondents' accounts of whether they turned out to vote in the general election.

Questionnaire development and documentation

Under the aegis of the Election Studies Management and Advisory Committee, a great deal of fruitful consultation took place about the content of both the cross-section and campaign panel questionnaires. Two major meetings were held, and the suggestions put forward helped both to identify possible topics for inclusion and exclusion in the questionnaires, and to point the way to a general strategy about which questions should be asked before and which after the election. Each meeting was followed up by close but more informal consultations with individual academics, both in Britain and the USA.

Documentation of all the questionnaires used was posted on the CREST WWW site (<http://www.strath.ac.uk/Other/CREST>).

Response

Main sample plus Scottish boost: of the 6,540 issued addresses, 5,814 were found to contain a person who was eligible for interview, and 3,615 (62%) of these were successfully interviewed. A total of 882 of these respondents were in Scotland.

Ethnic minority study: to the 106 respondents from eligible ethnic minority communities interviewed as part of the main sample in England and Wales were added a further 599 interviewed as part of the booster sample in areas of high ethnic minority concentration (with a response rate of 45%). The total sample for the ethnic minority study is thus 705.

b) British Election Campaign Panel

The Campaign Panel was designed to measure change over the ‘long’ and ‘short’ election campaign. Its first round was incorporated within SCPR’s 1996 British Social Attitudes survey (BSA) in the spring/summer of 1996. The BSA survey comprises around 3,600 people, also selected at random from the Postcode Address File. The interview was about one hour in length administered using computer-assisted personal interviewing, after which respondents were asked to complete a self-completion questionnaire.

All respondents who had given their telephone numbers (85 per cent) minus those who refused to be re-interviewed (5 per cent of those with telephone numbers) were re-contacted (if obtainable) three times during the election period a year or so later for:

- a 15-minute telephone interview in the 3-4 weeks before the election
- a 15-minute telephone interview in the 1-2 weeks before the election
- a 5-minute telephone interview immediately after the election

Response rates

The table below presents the response rates in two ways: wave on wave response rates (showing the success of each wave of fieldwork), and overall response rates (showing the effect of attrition in aggregate). It should be noted that the short fieldwork periods in Waves 2 and 3 (two weeks in each case) meant, of course, that some respondents who might have been willing to be interviewed could not be contacted in the time available.

BSA 1996 (Wave 1)

Issued:	6,000
Of which in scope:	5,374	100%
Productive interview:	3,662	68%	100%

Early campaign (Wave 2)

Issued:	2,931			100%
Productive interview:	1,800	33%	49%	61%

Late campaign (Wave 3)

Issued:	2,537				100%
Productive interview:	1,809	34%	49%	61%	71%

Post-election (Wave 4)

Issued:	2,318				100%
Productive interview:	2,047	38%	56%	70%	88%

In all, 1,422 panel members were interviewed at all four waves, 1,957 in at least 3 waves and 2,277 were interviewed in at least 2 waves.

c) Associated Studies

The CREST team sought wherever possible to maximise the utility of the cross-section and campaign studies by linking their content and design to that of other research projects being conducted at the time of the 1997 election. These were as follows:

- CREST's British Election Panel Study (BEPS - 1): a panel of respondents followed every six months or so during the course of the 1992-97 parliament and who were interviewed for the last time immediately after the 1997 general election. The 1997 cross-section survey respondents now form the first wave of BEPS- 2 (see further below).
- British Social Attitudes 1997 survey: conducted by SCPR in February and March 1997 just before the general election. This carried a module of items consisting either of questions for which space could not be found on the BES cross-section questionnaire or where there would be an advantage in having both pre- and post-election measures. In particular, it contained a sequence of open-ended questions on likes and dislikes of the Conservative and Labour Parties and measures of social and political trust.
- A Qualitative Study of Electoral Volatility: carried out by Jane Ritchie and Clarissa White of SCPR and Fiona Devine of Manchester University. The respondents to this study were selected from the campaign study, and in-depth interviews were carried out with them in summer 1997 to find out, in particular, why voters had changed their political allegiances and voting behaviour.
- The British Representation Study: a survey of MPs and candidates at the 1997 election undertaken by Pippa Norris of Harvard University. This study carried some identical items to the BES to enable elite-mass comparisons.
- Experimental Study of Television News: a study of impact of television news coverage on agenda- setting and party preferences using an experimental design and conducted by Pippa Norris of Harvard University and David Sanders of the University of Essex. The questionnaires used in this study carried some items also included in the campaign panel.
- British News Content Analysis Study: a study of the contents of the British media by Holli Semetko of University of Amsterdam and Margaret Scammell and Peter Goddard of the University of Liverpool. Measures of 'issue importance' in the campaign panel used a compatible coding scheme to the one used on this study.

British Election Panel Study - 1

The 1992-1997 British Election Panel Study (BEPS - 1) attempted to contact a sample of registered electors a total of eight times, the first wave being just after the April 1992 General Election and the final wave being just after the May 1997 General Election.

The broad aims of BEPS - 1 were to investigate individual-level stability and change in political attitudes, economic and social circumstances and voting behaviour over the lifetime of the 1992-97 parliament. A wave of data collection was carried out each spring, immediately following the general election (1992, 1997), local government elections (1993, 1995, 1996) or European Parliament elections (1994). In addition, there were two autumn waves, in 1995 and 1996, both following the party conference season. Consequently, contacts with the panel were annual until spring 1995 and six-monthly thereafter.

The initial sample was an equal-probability national sample of over 5,000 registered electors (except that Scotland was sampled at a higher rate than England and Wales, to increase the precision of estimates for Scotland). From wave 2 onwards, as many as possible of the wave 1 respondents were included in the issued sample, exceptions being those who had adamantly refused to be contacted again and those who were known to have died or moved overseas. On all waves, panel members who were to be contacted by telephone or face-to-face were sent an advance letter.

Multiple data collection modes were used. Waves 1, 3, 4, 6 and 8 were carried out face-to-face in respondents' own homes. At waves 3 and 4 a small number of interviews were carried out by telephone where a personal interview was not possible. Wave 2 consisted of a postal questionnaire, with some telephone interviewing of non-respondents to the postal questionnaire. Waves 5 and 7 were conducted by telephone where possible, with postal questionnaires sent to sample members for whom no telephone number was available. The data collection modes, and the achieved sample size, at each wave are summarised below.

Wave	Date	Timing	Data Collection Mode	Achieved Sample
1	Spring 1992	After General Election (April 9)	Face-to-face interview with self-completion supplement	3,534
2	Spring 1993	After local elections (May 6)	Postal questionnaire (some telephone interviews)	2,622
3	Spring 1994	After European elections (June 9)	Face-to-face interview with self-completion supplement	2,277
4	Spring 1995	After local elections (May 4)	Face-to-face interview with self-completion supplement	1,992
5	Autumn 1995	After party conferences (October 13)	Telephone interview (some postal questionnaires)	2,021
6	Spring 1996	After local elections (May 3)	Face-to-face interview with self-completion supplement	1,668
7	Autumn 1996	After party conferences (October 12)	Telephone interview (some postal questionnaires)	1,174*
8	Spring 1997	After General Election (May 1)	Face-to-face interview	1,694

* Not all eligible cases were issued, as part of an experiment to test the effect on panel attrition of reducing the total number of contacts.

Panel attrition was a major pre-occupation of the survey team (Taylor, Heath and Lynn, 1996). Politics is not the most salient and relevant topic for the majority of the general population, and political surveys tend, consequently, not to achieve the highest of response rates. Furthermore about 10% of adults change their permanent address in any 12-month period, so a considerable effort was needed to trace sample members to new addresses.

The terms of the ESRC grant committed CREST to conducting a second panel survey (BEPS - 2), beginning after the 1997 general election and running at least until 1999. To help inform the design of BEPS - 2, some methodological experiments were incorporated into the later rounds of BEPS - 1. These experiments tested the effects of certain design features - the use of incentives, the provision of information about future contacts, and the total number of contacts within the life of the panel - on wave response and attrition.

British Election Panel Study - 2

The British Election Panel Study - 2 (BEPS - 2) began with the British Election Survey (BES), a face-to-face interview (followed by a self-completion supplement) carried out with 3,615 adults soon after the general election in May 1997. Of these, 3,434 were issued for the second wave of data collection (the first wave of BEPS - 2). Interviews took place in the autumn of 1997. Interviewing was by telephone, with a postal questionnaire for sample members for whom no telephone number was available). As a result of the experiment on BEPS - 1, a £3 incentive was sent with the advance letter to sample members at wave 2 of BEPS - 2. Also, all sample members were told explicitly that they were now part of a panel, that they would always receive an advance letter before any approach (giving them the chance to opt out), and that they would always receive a small payment as a token of thanks.

A total of 2,989 questionnaires were completed by panel members, a gross response rate of 87%. This was considerably higher than the 78% response achieved at wave 2 of BEPS - 1, although part at least of the difference may be ascribed to factors other than the information incentive/ information effect. In particular, the time elapsed between the first and the second round of BEPS - 1 was considerably longer than for BEPS - 2. The next round of interviewing on BEPS - 2 will take place in May 1998, with further rounds to follow.

British Social Attitudes Survey series

The British Social Attitudes (BSA) surveys, started in 1983, are conducted annually among a representative cross-section of the British population. The series seeks to chart continuity and change in British social values over the years in relation to other changes in society, and collects attitudinal data on a wide range of social, political and moral issues. It is core-funded by the Gatsby Charitable Foundation and draws on additional financial support from government departments, quasi-government organisations, foundations and academic institutions. Between 1989 and 1996, in collaboration with colleagues at The Queen's University Belfast and the Central Survey Unit of NISRA, SCPR was also responsible for the design and conduct of the Northern Ireland Social Attitudes (NISA) survey.

The BSA surveys are based on representative samples of around 3,600 adults (aged 18+), selected by probability methods from private addresses listed in the Postcode Address File (PAF). Interviews are conducted using computer-assisted personal interview (CAPI) plus a follow-up self-completion questionnaire. Fieldwork takes place in the spring and early summer, and the response rate is typically around 68%.

An edited book is published each year in which a variety of contributors summarise and interpret data from the previous year's survey, compare the findings with data from earlier surveys and draw preliminary conclusions. Each book includes detailed appendices with information about sampling, fieldwork and coding, and includes the questionnaires with the percentage distribution of answers to each question.

Questionnaires fielded and planned, and Reports published and scheduled for publication, during the lifetime of CREST are:

	Questionnaires fielded	Reports published

Each year's data are made publicly available through the Data Archive at the University of Essex, and are among the Archive's most popular holdings. A technical report, also published annually (by SCPR), describes each survey's sampling, data collection and data preparation methods, and gives code locations, code frames, occupational coding and other details. An electronic database (on CD-ROM) of all the BSA surveys carried out to date is being prepared in collaboration with Guildhall University and will be published in 1998. It will contain the complete texts of all the BSA questionnaires and the distribution of responses on time-series tables and will have topic and free text search facilities.

International Social Survey Programme

International comparisons are an important element in understanding trends in values among the British public. The International Social Survey Programme (ISSP) is a continuing annual programme of cross-national collaboration, with research teams in each of the member countries (now 28) devoting a part of their respective annual studies to an agreed module of questions on a rotating set of topics. Co-founded in 1985 by SCPR, ISSP has now fielded 13 modules in eight different areas of social science concern. Since 1989, the ESRC (first through JUSST and then through CREST) has provided the financial support needed to maintain Britain's membership.

The ISSP modules (each around 60 questions) are fielded on SCPR's annual British Social Attitudes survey, as part of the self-completion supplement. The 6th and 10th Reports in the BSA series present and interpret some of the findings, as will The 15th Report - with the similarities and differences between Britain and other EU nations as its main theme. It will be published (by Ashgate) in November, 1998.

Questionnaire modules fielded and planned during the lifetime of CREST are:

1995	National Identity
1996	Role of Government - third replication
1997	Work Orientations - second replication
1998	Religion - second replication
1999	Social Inequality - third replication

Typically the achieved sample size is over 1,000 respondents.

The annual datasets for Britain are deposited in the Data Archive at the University of Essex around two years after fieldwork. The merging of the data to form a cross-national dataset is carried out by the Zentralarchiv für Empirische Sozialforschung at the University of Cologne.

Scottish and Welsh Referendum Studies

In September 1997, Scottish and Welsh electors were asked in referendums to say whether or not they were in favour of a separate parliament for Scotland and an assembly for Wales. In Scotland there was an extra question about support for tax-varying powers for a new parliament. The ESRC provided CREST with funding to carry out two parallel studies among Welsh and Scottish electors just after the two referendums. In a face-to-face interview lasting about 40 minutes, respondents were asked if and how they had voted, and the studies also explored the factors underlying support for, or opposition to, constitutional change and examined people's expectations of a future Scottish parliament or Welsh assembly. In all, 676 electors were interviewed in Scotland and 686 in Wales, response rates of 68% and 73% respectively.

In designing these two studies, members of CREST worked closely with Professor David McCrone of the Unit for the Study of Government in Scotland, University of Edinburgh, and his colleagues and with Dr. Richard Wyn Jones of the Department of International Politics, University of Wales at Aberystwyth.

NOTE FOR USERS
(24 March 1999)

This note provides information in brief about the survey. It accompanies the final version of the datafiles (besx97.por and scot97.por) and replaces the earlier note dated 30 April 1998. For further details about the survey, see Thomson, K. et al (1999 forthcoming) The British General Election Study: Cross-section Survey, Scottish Election Study and Ethnic Minority Study: Technical Report, London, SCPR.

About the survey

The BGES cross-section survey was conducted by the Centre for Research Into Elections and Social Trends (CREST) (an ESRC Research Centre linking Social and Community Planning Research and Nuffield College, Oxford) in cooperation with Pippa Norris (Harvard University). It was funded by the ESRC (grant numbers H552/255/003 and H552/255/004) and by the Gatsby Charitable Foundation.

The survey was designed to yield a representative sample of the population in Britain aged 18+. The sample of addresses was drawn from the Postcode Address File. At each address, the interviewer established how many occupied dwelling units it contained. If there were several, one was selected at random for interview (using a Kish grid and random numbers). The interviewer then established how many adults aged 18+ lived in the (selected) dwelling unit. If there were several, one adult was selected (using a similar procedure as that used for dwelling units). The unequal selection probabilities arising from these procedures are taken into account by the weighting.

The fieldwork was conducted by Social and Community Planning Research. Interviews were conducted in the respondent's home, using a laptop computer. The face-to-face interview was designed to last about one hour (one hour ten minutes in Scotland) and was then followed by a self-completion questionnaire.

The survey incorporates a Scottish boost sample. The weights on the main survey file take the Scottish boost into account. A separate file for Scotland is also available. Scottish respondents were asked approximately 40 extra questions with special reference to Scotland. The Scottish Election Survey was conducted in cooperation with David McCrone (University of Edinburgh) and colleagues.

Fieldwork started immediately after the 1997 general election and was finished by early August. A summary of the response is as follows:

Issued addresses	6,540
Of which in scope ¹	5,814
Productive interviews	3,615 (62%)
Of which in Scotland	882

The self-completion questionnaire included a module of questions (Q13-27) which were fielded as part of the CSES international comparative research program.

The data file should be used in conjunction with the following documentation:

- Documentation of the Blaise questionnaire program (final version dated August 1998)
- Showcards
- Self-completion questionnaire
- Scale booklets (separate versions for England&Wales and Scotland)
- Income tax ballot form
- Address Record Forms sample types A and B
- Address information Form

Electoral Register and Turnout

The 1997 British General Election Study used a Postcode Address File (PAF) sample rather than the Electoral Register samples that had been used on previous Election Studies. This means that the full 1997 BGES sample includes some people who were not on the Electoral Register and thus not entitled to vote. (This was done deliberately to study non-registration).

In order to make the 1997 study fully comparable to earlier studies, respondents were checked against the Electoral Registers. In order to make the check as complete as possible, we collected not only the 'issued address', i.e. the address where the respondent was living at the time of the interview, but we also asked the respondent (a) whether there was another address where they thought they were on the register and (b) where they had been living in October 1996 (which was the qualifying point for the 1997 registers). Thus up to three addresses were checked for some respondents. The results are on the file separately in variables prefixed ISS, OTH and O96 respectively.

The check was done in two stages:

- (a) a first check was carried out against the marked-up Electoral Registers, which are held at the Lord Chancellor's Department for a year after the election (by the Sherriff's Clerks in Scotland) and
- (b) a supplementary check was carried out against ordinary (unmarked registers) in the summer of 1998.

For addresses checked against the marked-up registers it was possible to ascertain both whether the respondent was on the register and whether they voted (but not, of course, for whom they voted). For addresses checked as part of the supplementary check, only registration could be ascertained.

¹ I.e. traceable, residential and occupied.

An interim version of the datafiles (besx974.por and scot974.por), based on the first check, was deposited in April 1998. The final version of the datafiles (besx97.por and scot97.por) is based on the combined information from the two checks.

The results of the first check are given in the variable ERRESULT (see attached code frame) (and ISSRESUL, OTHRESUL and O96RESUL). The results of the supplementary check are given in the variables ISSSUP, OTHSUP and O96SUP. For most purposes, however, the following two variables, which combine information from the two checks, should be sufficient:

TURNOUT - whether the respondent voted (at any of their possible addresses)
1      Voted personally
2      Voted by proxy
3      Voted by post
4      Voted in parliamentary election only
5      Voted locally only
6      Did not vote
7      On the register but not known whether voted
8      Not entitled to vote
9      Address not found (i.e. register consulted, but address not found)
10     Not certain (i.e. not possible to establish whether one of the names of the register was that of the respondent)
99     ER check incomplete (e.g. register not available)

(Note that the code frame for TURNOUT is different to the one used on besx974.por and scot974.por.)

REGISTER - whether respondent is on the Electoral Register for parliamentary elections (at any of their possible addresses)
1      ON the register
2      NOT on the register
3      Address not found (see above)
4      Not certain (see above)
9      ER check incomplete (see above)

For any analysis where comparability with earlier British General Election Studies is essential, the sample should be limited to electors only. This can most easily be done using the weighting (see below).

Weighting

The Cross-section dataset (in common with all surveys based on samples from the Postcode Address File) must be weighted to take account of differing selection probabilities. Simplifying slightly: households are selected with equal probability, but only one person in each household is interviewed. People in small households therefore have a higher probability of selection than people in large households and the weighting corrects for this. The weights also take into account the Scottish boost (downweighting Scotland to its correct proportion) and include some correction for non-response based on interviewer observation of productive and non-productive addresses (see the Address Information Form).

Please note that the data must be weighted in all analysis. The file is not preweighted.

Before running any analysis, please use the following SPSS command:

weight by <whichever is the appropriate weighting variable>

(or similar, depending on the exact syntax of your version of SPSS).

There are two sets of weights: one for all respondents and one for electors only (see section on Electoral Register and Turnout above). There are also different weights for Britain as a whole and for Scotland. The weighting variables and resulting sample sizes are as follows:

	Britain		Scotland
	Weighting variable	Sample size	Weighting variable	Sample size
Unweighted	-	3615	-	882
Whole sample	WTALLGB	2906	WTALLSC	882
Electors only	WTERGB	2689	WTERSC	841

Where the result of the Registration check is missing, the respondents self-reported registration has been used.

Geographic information

Addresses were linked via postcode to the 1991 Census database held at MIDAS to obtain the following geographic information, which is available for the (up to) three addresses collected for each respondent (prefixed ISS, OTH, and O96 respectively) (see section on Electoral Registration and Turnout above):

ISSPC	Postcode sector (first half of the postcode)
ISSPANO	Press Association constituency number
ISSCONST	Census constituency number
ISSCONSN	Constituency name (text variable)
ISSCC	County Council
ISSCCNAM	County Council (text variable)
ISSDC	District Council
ISSDCNAM	District Council (text variable)
ISSWARD	Ward
ISSWARDN	Ward (text variable)

Income question

As an experiment, two versions of the income question were asked. One part of the sample were asked to give their household income from a showcard (reading out a letter corresponding to the correct band), while the other part were given a 'secret ballot' form to fill in. The answers to the showcard version are given in the variable HHINCOMA and to the secret ballot version in HHINCOMB. The combined information is given in the variable HHINCOME.

BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION STUDY 1997 ETHNIC MINORITY SURVEY

INTERIM NOTE FOR USERS (30 April 1998)

About the survey

The BGES ethnic minority study survey was conducted by the Centre for Research Into Elections and Social Trends (CREST) (an ESRC Research Centre linking Social and Community Planning Research and Nuffield College, Oxford) in co-operation with Shamit Saggur of Queen Mary and Westfield College. The ethnic minority survey formed part of the British General Election Study Cross-section survey and this note should be read in conjunction with the Interim Note for Users for this survey. The ethnic minority extension was funded by the ESRC (grant number R000/222/123) and the Commission for Racial Equality.

The ethnic minority sample covered England and Wales only. The survey definition for eligible ethnic minorities was 'black or of Indian, Pakistani or Bangladeshi origin'. Other ethnic minorities were excluded as there would be insufficient numbers for separate analysis. The sample was generated from three main sources:

- Ethnic minority respondents who happened to be generated by the main study (samples A and B)
- A large-scale screening exercise in areas of high ethnic minority concentration (sample C)
- Next-door screening at some sample points with high ethnic minority concentrations (sample D).

The sample type is given in a variable called SAMPLORI. The unequal selection probabilities arising from the three sample types are taken into account in the weighting.

The interviewing and fieldwork details are identical to the main cross-section survey (see Interim note for users for this survey), except:

- Ethnic minority respondents were asked approximately 40 extra questions as part of the face-to-face interview, including one extra eleven point scale question. (The face-to-face questions are covered in the documentation of the Blaise questionnaire for the main survey and there is an additional ethnic minority scale booklet).
- Ethnic minority respondents in sample C and D were given a shortened version of the self-completion questionnaire, excluding the CSES questions.

A summary of response is as follows:

	Samples A/B	Sample C	Sample D
Issued addresses	-	3,425	504
Of which in scope ¹	-	930	430
Productive interviews	106	405 (44%)	194 (45%)

Electoral Register and Turnout check

The 1997 British Election Study used a Postcode Address File (PAF) sample rather than the Electoral Register samples that had been used on previous election studies. This means that the full 1997 BES sample includes some people who were not on the Electoral Register and thus not entitled to vote. (This was done deliberately to study non-registration). In order to make the 1997 cross-section study fully comparable to earlier studies, a check has been carried out against the marked-up Electoral Registers, which are held at the Lord Chancellor's Department for a year after the election and which show (a) whether the respondent was on the register and (b) whether they voted (but not, of course, for whom they voted). In the case of the ethnic sample, there is no earlier study, so issues of comparability are not as directly relevant, but a similar check is nevertheless in progress. So far, interim results are available for issued addresses generated from the main sample and for the large-scale screening study sample (but not yet for the next-door screening sample).²

The information resulting from the Electoral Register check is recorded in full a variable called ERRESULT (code frame attached), which gives the full code list used by the Lord Chancellor's Department. For most purposes, following two variables should be sufficient:

TURNOUT - whether the respondent voted (at any of their possible addresses)
1      Voted personally
2      Voted by proxy
3      Voted by post
4      Voted in parliamentary election only
5      Voted locally only
6      Did not vote
7      Not entitled to vote
8      Address not found (i.e. register consulted, but address not found)
9      Not certain (i.e. not possible to establish whether one of the names of the register was that of the respondent)
99     ER check incomplete (e.g. register not available)

¹ I.e. traceable, residential, occupied and containing at least one member of an eligible ethnic minority.

² In order to make the check as complete as possible, we collected not only the 'issued address', i.e. the address where the respondent was living at the time of the interview, but we also asked (a) whether there was another address where they thought they were on the register and (b) where they had been living in October 1996 (which was the qualifying point for the 1997 registers). Thus up to three addresses were available for some respondents. The results for the second and third addresses are so far available only for the ethnic sample members generated from the main sample, although checks for the screening samples are in progress. The separate results for the three addresses - insofar as they are available - are on the file in variables prefixed ISS, OTH and O96 respectively.

REGISTER - whether respondent is on the Electoral Register for parliamentary elections (at any of their possible addresses)

- 1 ON the register
- 2 NOT on the register
- 3 Address not found (see above)
- 4 Not certain (see above)
- 9 ER check incomplete (see above)

For any analysis where comparability with earlier election studies is essential, the sample should be limited to electors only. This can most easily be done using the weighting (see below).

The Turnout Study is now completely finished (since the marked-up registers will be destroyed on 1 May), but efforts are continuing to fill any missing data (including the next-door screening sample) on the Registration variable.

Weighting

The ethnic minority dataset (in common with all surveys based on samples from the Postcode Address File) must be weighted to take account of differing selection probabilities. Simplifying slightly: households are selected with equal probability, but only one person in each household is interviewed. People in small households therefore have a higher probability of selection than people in large households and the weighting corrects for this. The weights also include some correction for non-response based on interviewer observation of non-productive addresses. Very importantly, the weights also take account of the differing selection probabilities of respondents from the three sample types.

Please note that the data must be weighted in all analysis. The file is not preweighted. Before running any analysis, please use the following SPSS command:

weight by <whichever is the appropriate weighting variable>
(or similar, depending on the exact syntax of your version of SPSS).

There are two sets of weights: one for all respondents and one for electors only (see section on Electoral Register and Turnout above). The weighting variables and resulting sample sizes are as follows:

Weighting variable:	Unweighted	Weighted (All respondents)	Weighted (Those on Electoral Register only)
	-	WTALLETH	WTERETH
Respondents identified as part of main sample (A&B)	106	161	146
Large-scale screening sample (C)	405	313	271
Next door screening sample (D)	194	231	219
	----- 705	----- 705	----- 636

Where the result of the Registration check is missing, the respondents self-reported registration has been used. (This is currently the case for the whole of sample type D). When the Electoral Register check is completed, it will be possible to improve on the weighting.

A word of warning: Weighting is necessary on all the BGES files to take account of differing selection probabilities. It is a desirable because it reduces non-response biases. However, it comes at a price: weighting increases the variance of estimates. To put it another way: the weighted sample behaves as if the sample size is actually smaller than the real sample size. This is referred to as the ‘effective sample size’³. We have calculated that the effective sample size to be 450 rather than 705 (a design effect of 1.56). That means that some caution should be exercised in calculations of statistical significance. They have also calculated that the design effect due to variable sampling fractions is 1.36, while the design effect due to non-response weighting and household selection probability is 1.15. So, the loss in precision is mostly due to the sample design (i.e. the three sample origins) rather than non-response weighting.

³ See, for example, P. Lynn and D. Lievesley Drawing General Population Samples in Great Britain, SCPR, 1991, p46-47.

Geographic information

This file also contains geographic information about the address of the respondent: ⁴

ISSPC	Postcode sector (first half of the postcode)
ISSPANO	Press Association constituency number
ISSCONST	Census constituency number
ISSCONSN	Constituency name (text variable)
ISSCC	County Council
ISSCCNAM	County Council (text variable)
ISSDC	District Council
ISSDCNAM	District Council (text variable)
ISSWARD	Ward
ISSWARDN	Ward (text variable)

For the next-door screening sample, only ISSPANO, ISSCONST and ISSCC are currently available.

Not all the geographic variables are labelled on the current file, but the parallel 'name' variables give the verbatim name of constituencies, councils and wards.

⁴ As for the Electoral Register information, the prefix ISS signified 'issued address'. The 'other' and October 1996 addresses have parallel variables prefixed OTH and O96 respectively, but these are so far available only for ethnic sample members generated from the main sample.

To the selected respondent:

Thank you very much for agreeing to take part in this important study of the British general election. This study is the tenth in the series which have taken place after every general election since 1964. It consists of this self-completion questionnaire, and the interview you have already completed. The results will be published in a book due out in the next year or so.

Completing the questionnaire:

The questions inside cover a wide range of subjects, but most can be answered simply by placing a tick (✓) in one or more of the boxes. No special knowledge is required: we are confident that everyone will be able to take part, not just those with strong views or particular viewpoints. The questionnaire should not take very long to complete, and we hope you will find it interesting and enjoyable. Only you should fill it in, and not anyone else at your address. The answers you give will be treated as confidential and anonymous.

Returning the questionnaire:

Your interviewer will arrange with you the most convenient way of returning the questionnaire. If the interviewer has arranged to call back for it, please fill it in and keep it safely until then. If not, please complete it and post it back in the pre-paid, addressed envelope, AS SOON AS YOU POSSIBLY CAN.

THANK YOU AGAIN FOR YOUR HELP.

To the selected respondent:

Thank you very much for agreeing to take part in this important study of the British general election. This study is the tenth in the series which have taken place after every general election since 1964. It consists of this self-completion questionnaire, and the interview you have already completed. The results will be published in a book due out in the next year or so.

Completing the questionnaire:

The questions inside cover a wide range of subjects, but most can be answered simply by placing a tick (✓) in one or more of the boxes. No special knowledge is required: we are confident that everyone will be able to take part, not just those with strong views or particular viewpoints. The questionnaire should not take very long to complete, and we hope you will find it interesting and enjoyable. Only you should fill it in, and not anyone else at your address. The answers you give will be treated as confidential and anonymous.

Returning the questionnaire:

Your interviewer will arrange with you the most convenient way of returning the questionnaire. If the interviewer has arranged to call back for it, please fill it in and keep it safely until then. If not, please complete it and post it back in the pre-paid, addressed envelope, AS SOON AS YOU POSSIBLY CAN.

THANK YOU AGAIN FOR YOUR HELP.

Introduction: I am (name) from Social and Community Planning Research. Show ID and describe survey. We are particularly interested in the views of particular groups in the population and are taking special steps to seek interviews with members of ethnic minorities. Is there anyone living at this address who is black or of Asian origin? By Asian we mean someone whose family comes originally from India, Pakistan or Bangladesh.

BRITISH ELECTION STUDY 1997 CROSS-SECTION

DOCUMENTATION OF THE BLAISE QUESTIONNAIRE

Notes:

1. This is a documentation of the Blaise program. Not all variables that appear here are on the SPSS file. Similarly, not all derived variables that are on the SPSS file are mentioned in this documentation. See also separate documentation of derived variables.
2. The questions have been placed in the order in which they were asked. This does not coincide exactly with the question numbering sequence. Hence some question numbers appear out of order.
3. Unless otherwise specified, 'Don't Know' is code 8 for single column questions, 98 for two column questions and so on.
4. Unless otherwise specified, 'Refusal/Not answered' is code 9 for single column questions, 99 for two column questions and so on. Where there is an explicit 'Refusal' code in the list (usually code 7 or 97), then code 9 (or 99) is reserved for 'Not answered' only. (Hence explicit refusals can be distinguished from general missing data for these questions.)
5. Sections in italics were textfilled as appropriate on the interviewers computer.
6. Routing instructions appear above the questions. A routing instruction should be considered to stay in force until the next routing instruction.

ETHNIC MINORITY MODULE

The definition of an 'eligible' ethnic minority respondent for this survey was someone in England and Wales who considered themselves to be black, Indian, Pakistani or Bangladeshi. There were two main sources of ethnic minority respondents: (a) an ethnic screening process was carried out at certain sample points in England and Wales and (b) ethnic minority respondents who were part of the main sample in England and Wales were identified via [RaceOri2]. (For more details of the screening process, see the Technical Report).

The ethnic minority module was asked of all respondents identified through the ethnic screening process (regardless of their answer at [RaceOri2]) plus all English and Welsh respondents who said Black/African, Black/Caribbean, Black/other, Asian/Indian, Asian/Pakistani, Asian/Bangladeshi, Asian/other or Mixed at [RaceOri2]. The verbatim answers for respondents who were not identified through the ethnic screen but were included by virtue of saying Asian/other and Mixed at [RaceOri2] were checked and any non-eligible respondents were removed from the data. The resulting 'eligible' sample is referred to below as 'ethnic minority sample' (see derived variable [EthMinQ]).
