Introduction

This booklet contains a full list of the codes used in study output files from the Offenders Index. It should be used in conjunction with The Offenders Index: a user's guide, which contains a full description of the format of output files. The two guides together allow criminal history information extracted from the Index to be interpreted.

Output files from the Index are made up of three types of record: study offender information (type 1), court appearance information (type 2) and offence information (type 3). The codes in this booklet are set out in roughly the order in which they appear in an output file; references are made where appropriate to the position in the relevant record type at which particular codes appear. These references relate to the format of output files created on or after 1 November 1994.

The codes used for a particular record are those which applied at the time the data in question was notified to the Home Office by the police. The lists of codes which follow include any code used since 1963 and which might appear in data extracted from the Index, irrespective of whether the code is still extant. Codes can and do change over time (eg. as new offences and disposals are created and others abolished); some of the codes which appear in a study output file may no longer be in current use. In most cases old and new codes are included in a single list with, where appropriate, the date(s) when they applied. Two separate lists are given for disposals, for pre-1990 and post-1990 respectively.

I. Gender and ethnicity

Gender

The one-character code for gender appears in column 34 of record type 1 (offender information). The code is often not present.

1	Male
2	Female
3	Unknown (early years only)

Ethnicity

The one-character code for ethnicity, where recorded, appears in column 36 of record type 1.

0	Unknown
1	White European
2	Dark European
3	Afro-caribbean
4	Asian
5	Oriental
6	Arab

This code is often not recorded.

II. Grouping of offence codes and disposal codes

The Offenders Index covers data from 1963. There have been changes since that date in offence codes and disposal codes, which can cause difficulties for analysts who want to ensure consistent treatment of data over time. This Appendix gives groupings for codes which may be useful. Sections V and VIII respectively list offences and disposal codes numerically. Offences not on the standard list are not listed but these may appear on the output file when tried with standard list offences.

Offence codes: subgroups

Notes

1. Where a year is not specified, this means that the code can be used in the group or subgroup for all years 1963 to 1993, although the offences included within the code may have changed during that time.
2. Highlighted entries indicate that the year must be specified in order to define the correct offence, because the same code number has been used for different types of offences at different times.
3. Roman numerals indicate the indictable offence group used in Criminal Statistics as follows:

- I Violence against the person
- II Sexual offences
- III Burglary
- IV Robbery
- V Theft and handling stolen goods
- VI Fraud and forgery
- VII Criminal damage
- VIII Drug offences
- IX Other (excluding motoring offences)
- X Motoring offences

These are the categories used in most published information that breaks results down by offence category.

B. Magistrates' Courts

As a general rule, magistrates' courts are numbered such that the last three digits of the respective codes for the adult court (AC) and the youth court (YC) (formerly known as juvenile courts) are the same in each case. This rule does not apply to courts in the inner London area.

V. Offence class codes

The three-character offence class code appears in columns 3-5 of record type 3 (offence information) and the two-character sub-class code appears in columns 7-8. The data on the Index relates only to offences classified as 'standard list' offences. These are all indictable or triable either way offences plus a few of the more serious summary offences. All the offences listed below are standard list or were so at the time of the relevant court appearance. A few summary offences have been declassified or reclassified as standard list during the period covered by the Index. The dates for which each summary offence was or is classified as standard list are indicated in bold type in square brackets.

Offences 1-99 are indictable non-motoring offence; others are summary or indictable motoring offences. Until 1 January 1996 the indictable motoring offence of dangerous driving (802) was standard list only where tried on indictment in the crown court, it is now a standard list offence. The other indictable motoring offence of fraud or forgery associated with vehicle or driver records (814) is still only a standard list offence when tried on indictment. The summary motoring offences 803 subclass 2 (the main category of 'drink driving') and '807 subclass 1 (driving whilst disqualified) were also added from January 1 1996. These two summary offences significantly broadened the coverage of standard list offences.

The dates for which each offence class code was or is extant, from 1963 onwards, are indicated in round brackets. Non standard list offences are also recorded on the Offenders Index when they are tried along with standard list offences. Details of coding for non standard list offences can be supplied on request . Non standard list offences will not be the principal offences except at the Crown Court when the prosecution for a standard list offence fails.

Note: curfew orders

Curfew orders (disposal codes 175 and 176) have an extra variable, namely a set number of hours per week for which the order has effect. An offender might, for example, be given a curfew order of 28 hours per week for 6 months. The number of hours per week appears in columns 15-17 of the court appearance (type 2) record. This three-character space is not used for any other purpose. The disposal code for a curfew order - 175 (with electronic monitoring) or 177 (without electronic monitoring) and the overall period for which it operates (6 months etc) appear in the offence information (type 3) record as with any other disposal.

IX. Amounts, duration and units

A four-character code for the amount and a single-character code for the corresponding unit or duration relating to each disposal appear in columns 19-22, 30-33 and 41-44 (amount) and 24, 35 and 46 of record type 3. The two sets of codes for the duration/unit are set out below.

A. Pre-1990

£	Monetary penalty in pounds (Note : a $ sign or a # may appear in some very old records; these should be read as a £ sign)
H	Hours
D	Days
W	Weeks
M	Months
Y	Years

B. 1990 onwards

1	Hours
2	Days
3	Weeks
4	Months
5	Years
6	Monetary penalty in pence
7	Monetary penalty in pounds
8	Monetary penalty in hundreds of pounds
9	Monetary penalty in thousands of pounds

Note: life sentences

A sentence of life imprisonment should normally be coded as imprisonment for 99 years. However, in some cases it has been coded as 1393 days or 6353 days.
