

GENERAL HOUSEHOLD SURVEY 2000/01: GUIDELINES FOR USING THE DATA

1 GHS questionnaires

The 2000/01 paper questionnaires have been provided in electronic format.

2 GHS data files

Two data files have been supplied:

Person-level file

GHS00client1.por contains person-level data. There is one record for every individual, including children, living in each responding household. This file contains schedule variables (that is, variables which were on the original questionnaire) and all the derived variables which have been programmed. All household-level variables have also been attached to all individuals in each household on the person level file.

The file includes two serial numbers which denote households and families. Hserial is a household identifier; each household has a unique value athserial, and this value is attached to everyone in the household.

Fserial is a family identifier. Each family unit a unique value afserial, and this value is attached to everyone in the family unit.

This file can be used to run tables at person level, household level or family level (see below), but for ease of access we have also supplied a household level file.

Household file

GHS00hclient1.por contains household data. There is one record per responding household. The file contains schedule variables and derived variables. Some schedule variables have been deleted or grouped to maintain confidentiality.

Creating household and family files from the person level file

Previously households could be identified from the person number because the HOH was always person number one. With the change to Household Reference Person (HRP) this is no longer the case. The variable HRP is the person number of the HRP so to identify households you need to select on HRP=PERSNO.

For families you use FUH=PERSNO (FUH is the person number of the family unit head).

3 Missing values

For each variable, there are three possible missing values. For the majority of variables, these are -6, -8, and -9. No values have been declared missing on the files supplied.

-6 means that the person was not eligible to answer a particular section and is therefore not eligible for inclusion in the relevant derived variable. For example, smoking questions are only asked of adults, so children are coded as -6 for smoking variables. Adults aged 16-59 are asked the family information questions, so children and adults aged 60 and over are coded as -6 for these variables.

-8 (NA) means 'No answer'. This is used where a respondent either does not know the answer or refuses to answer an individual question.

-9 (DNA) means 'Does not apply'. This is used when a household or respondent is eligible to be asked a question, but is routed past it by the flow of the questionnaire. For example, if a respondent is asked whether he or she is eligible to belong to their employer's pension scheme and the answer is 'no', he or she will be coded as -9 on the follow-up question which asked whether he or she belongs to the scheme.

Missing values are defined differently for the income section, as it is important to be able to distinguish those who have refused the whole section. Because SPSS only allows the use of three missing values, we have combined -6 and -9. For income variables, the three missing values are -7, -8 and -9.

-7 means that a respondent has refused the whole income section

-8 (NA) has the same meaning as for other variables

-9 combines -6 and -9, and therefore includes people who are not eligible for the income section, such as children, and respondents who are routed past questions by the flow of the questionnaire.

Some words of warning

If you are using SPSS-NT, then it is very easy to save amended versions of SPSS files when you don't want to. When you try to quit SPSS, the dialogue box asks if you want to save the file. The intuitive reaction is to click on 'yes', but you should only do this if you want to save any amendments you have made. If you have used a 'keep' or 'select' statement, clicking 'yes' will save only the cases or variables you have selected. We recommend that you make a back-up copy of the data files as soon as you receive them, just in case you inadvertently change the data files.

Both data files are large, and it takes time to run frequencies and tabulations on the full files. We recommend that you use a 'keep' statement to select relevant variables.

SSD is currently using version 10 of SPSS-NT. We still have problems with missing values when trying to create derived variables in this version of SPSS. The solution we have used is to declare no missing values, then create the new variables, then declare missing values.

4 Excel spreadsheet (Derived variables – name changes)*

As you know, we reviewed the derived variables in preparation for the relaunch of the GHS in April 2000. New variables have been added over the years, and there was considerable inconsistency in naming conventions. We tried to achieve more consistency and to make the variable names more self-explanatory. Some of the changes were made in 1998.

This is the first data set to be delivered since the implementation of the findings of the GHS review. One of the outcomes of the review was an agreement to limit the number of derived variables we supplied with the basic data set in order to reduce costs. A set of around 250 derived variables was agreed representing a considerable reduction from the overall total of 750 at the time of the review.

The list of these 250 variables forms part of the documentation accompanying the data. Many of the excluded variables were either simple recodes which other researchers can easily recreate or variables from past analyses which had not been repeated. All the questionnaire variables are still included on the data set. If lack of a specific variable causes you particular problems please contact us for advice.

All changes are listed on the Excel spreadsheet.
