

Omnibus Survey February 2015

Welcome

Thank you for taking part in the 21st Century Evangelicals online research.

These surveys are designed by the Evangelical Alliance working with a group of other Christian organisations – our research club partners.

This quarter's survey includes groups of questions suggested by these organisations and by the Evangelical Alliance.

We are not intending to publish a full report from this survey, but some of the findings may appear in other Alliance publications. The full findings will be available on request from July 2015.

All answers are anonymous. If you'd really rather not answer a particular question you can always leave it blank. People vary, but we estimate the survey shouldn't take longer than about 20 minutes, unless you choose to write a lot in open-ended comment boxes.

Questions from Prospects

Prospects is a Christian charity providing loving Christian care homes for adults with learning disabilities. Prospects works in partnership with local churches to support Christian families in their memberships affected by learning disability; and to recruit Christian care workers.

Recently there has been several stories in the media about the way people with learning disabilities are cared for and sometimes mistreated. Prospects is interested to find out about the attitudes of Christians to people with learning disabilities. So in this section we are going to ask some questions about your reaction to these stories:

17. In response to a broadcast debate "When does human life begin?"

A mother tweeted: "I honestly don't know what I would do if I were pregnant with a kid with Down's syndrome. Real ethical dilemma," A well-known author tweeted back: "Abort it and try again. It would be immoral to bring it into the world if you have the choice,"

Which of the following statements corresponds best to your view..

- No abortions should be allowed on the grounds that Down's syndrome in the foetus has been diagnosed
- It is an agonising ethical dilemma but the mother should be free to choose what to do
- A woman in this position should abort it and try again- It would be immoral to bring the child into the world

Please feel free to tell us about your views

How we treat people with learning disabilities

18. It has been reported 2,300 people suffering from autism and learning disabilities are being locked up in UK hospitals receiving inappropriate treatment. For example the Care Quality Commission revealed a woman with severe learning disabilities locked in a room by herself for nine years, forced to sleep on a beanbag, with food delivered and her hair brushed by staff through a hatch in the wall.

Which of the following statements corresponds best to your reaction..

- This is the first I have heard of it and I am deeply shocked
- I was aware of this story but haven't done anything about it
- I was aware of this story and have talked or prayed about it with friends or in church
- I became aware of this story and as a result took some action such as writing to an MP or to the media
- I think this is a very difficult area and it is best left to the professionals to sort out

Please feel free to tell us about your views

Hospital care

19. Research last year estimated that 1,200 people with learning disabilities (3 per day) are dying "needlessly", largely due to delays or problems in investigating illnesses because NHS hospitals are not employing specialist nurses trained to care for and communicate with people with learning disabilities.

Which of the following statements corresponds best to your view of what the NHS needs to do?

- The NHS should act swiftly to make training of such specialist nurses one of its top priorities
- The NHS should seek to shift some of its resources to provide better care for people with learning disabilities.
- The NHS has more important priorities such as providing better care for cancer patients
- The NHS should invite and rely on charities such as Prospects to train volunteers to be advocates for people with learning disabilities

Please feel free to tell us about your views

Employment issues

20. At a conference fringe meeting a councillor suggested that people with mental health problems may be unable to work because employers were unwilling to pay them the statutory minimum wage. A peer responded “You make a really good point about the disabled. There is a group where actually, as you say, they’re not worth the full wage.”

It has been suggested that the Government should draw up a Charter of Rights for people with learning disabilities and their families which would include employment.

If there was such a charter which of the following statements corresponds best to your view?

- It should ensure that everyone who is employed, regardless of their abilities should be paid at least the rate for the Living wage
- It should ensure that everyone who is employed, regardless of their abilities should be paid at least the statutory minimum wage
- Employers should be free to pay as much or as little as they wish to people with learning disabilities as long as workers are able to exercise choice and control over their lives and that they are treated with dignity and respect
- It is fine for employers to take on people with learning disabilities to work for them as unpaid volunteers.
- There is no need for a Charter of Rights covering employment of people with learning disabilities

Please feel free to tell us about your views
